The British steamer Cyprien reports:

Light Easterly breeze and fine weather

Victor Emanuel. The Court comprised Commodore Watson (President), Captain Napier (Nassau), Commander Scott (Lapwing), Lieut. Commander G. A. Grey (Mosquito), and Lieut. Commander Tudor (Swinger). The prisoner, who belonged to H. M. S. Groveler, was charged with assaulting the First Lieutenant. The Court, taking into consideration the prisoner's previous good conduct and that he had been 18 years in the service, sentenced him to 2 years' imprisonment with hard labour, and to be dismissed the service.

"We understand that every facility will be placed in the way of residents who join the Volunteers in regard to the times to be fixed for drill. So far as we can make out, attendance in the evening or the morning will be at the option of the Volunteer, so long as he qualifies himself for duty within a reasonable time. Captain Dempster is spoken of as the officer likely to be placed in charge of the Corps; and if this be correct, we cannot but congratulate the Colony on the anticipated appointment of so experienced an officer. Touching the large numbers of able-bodied German residents, a foolish rumour got into circulation to the effect that they had been peremptorily forbidden by their Consul to take any part in the movement. This is not the case, although, from their peculiar position and their oaths as members of the vast body under Count von Moltke, they are virtually precluded from actually joining the Corps. That they have no sympathy with the defensive movements now being made, is quite another matter; and we believe that they would be more than sympathizers were any attack made on our island habitation.

A fatal accident occurred this morning to a coolie who was employed dragging a gun for the battery at Battery Road. It appears that there were about 90 or 100 coolies employed to drag the gun, and on reaching a part of Bonham Road, where the gun had to descend an incline, the men on the ropes ran back so as to get behind the gun and check it. In doing so, one of them tripped across the bar of a stone barrow, which had been removed to the side of the road to allow the gun to pass, and the shock of the rope catching the stones on the barrow at the same time, they fell on his head, completely crushing it. He only lived a few minutes afterwards. An inquest was held on the body this afternoon, and the Jury (consisting of Messrs W. Deumman, F. J. Barros and J. S. Moss) returned a verdict of accidental death.

Shipping in Port.—Europe, Teh Yew, Yesso.

We have received information that Mr Harry Parkes McClellan of H.M.'s Consular service is appointed Assistant Chinese Secretary of Legation. Mr McClellan, however, goes home on leave of absence for the usual term, before entering on the duties of his new office. We heartily congratulate him on his promotion.—Shanghai Courier.

The following notice to mariners has been issued by order of the Inspector General of Customs:—Yangtze River—Shanghai District.—Buoy at the Lanchow.—A Middle Bank Buoy.—This buoy has been painted red, surrounded by a black conical frustum cage, and shifted about 200 feet to the north of its former position. It is moored in 5 fathoms at low water spring tides, and marks the starboard side of the channel between the bank to the westward of Flover Point and the North Bank.

2.—Waterman Bank Lower Buoy.—This buoy, now a conical one 6 feet in diameter and surrounded by a black spherical cage, has been shifted about 2 miles to the northward of its former position. It is moored in 4 fathoms at low water spring tides, and marks the N.E. edge of the Waterman Bank.

3.—Lanchow Buoy.—This buoy has been painted red, as it now marks the S.W. edge of the bank to the starboard of it, and is moored in 5 fathoms at low water spring tides. As the banks near the Lanchow Crossing are liable to sudden changes, this part of the river should be navigated with caution, and the lead kept going.

(Both Magistrates Sitting.)

May 8, 1878.

Wan Ahn, a coolie, was sent to one month's hard labour for stealing a coil of rope belonging to the boat of Messrs. R. S. Watson & Co.

STRAYING CHAIN POLICE.

Leong Ahban, a chain police, was sent to 6 months' hard labour for stealing a pair of chain poles from the house of Captain Purnham. The defendant had been six times summarily convicted during the last three years. Mr May gave him a very severe lecturing and told him that the next time he was charged with stealing he should be sent to the Supreme Court.

China.

(Herald, April 25th.)

The French corvette La Hugon called at Pagoda Anchorage, en route for Shanghai from Amoy, on the 18th instant, and left on the 22nd instant.

On Tuesday last the Arsenal gunboat Yu Sing having in tow the Customs barge Mim with the No. 2 Fairway Buoy on board, proceeded down the river, and returned to her moorings the next day.

The sailing-ships Black Prince and Norman Court are, we notice, expected to load tea at this port for London. Also the Australasian Steam Navigation Company's S. S. Gunga for Sydney and Brisbane.

During the thunder-storm in the Settlement on Sunday last, two Chinese were, we regret to learn, struck by lightning near the Native Hospital, and killed instantaneously. A third man, who received a somewhat lighter shock, was seriously injured at the same time and place.

In marked contrast to the inactivity recently shown to Admiral Patterson by the Viceroy of this province, on the occasion of the first named official's visit to Foochow, we may refer to the gallant Admiral's reception by the Emperor of Japan, only a month previously, when His Imperial Majesty extended all becoming courtesy to his distinguished visitor. They certainly seem to manage these things better in the Land of the Rising Sun.

The Medical Mission Hospital building at Poonasang is, we are glad to hear, now completed, and is shortly to be opened for the reception of in-patients. Dr Osgood will thus be enabled to greatly extend the field of usefulness in which he has embarked, the very limited accommodation hitherto at his disposal having, we understand, seriously retarded the successful treatment of cases, especially those requiring major surgical operations.

(Herald, May 2nd.)

We hear that the Fantai, or Provincial Treasurer, will leave for his new post in Kansuh very shortly. His Excellency will travel via Peking, where he will make a short stay and probably obtain Imperial audience prior to resuming his journey.

From the lower tea districts we learn that the crop is expected to be a very full one, though nothing reliable is at present known in regard to opening prices or quality. Peking Congos are nearly ready for picking, but only a few bona fide numbers have been shown.

The Foreign Community of this port are once more in daily communication with Amoy, and consequently within three days telegraphic hail of London. The first courier left yesterday, and will, we understand, continue to leave throughout the season at 1.45 p.m.

We understand that the four alphabetical Gunboats left Pagoda Anchorage for Tientsin on the 30th ultimo. These vessels will, we believe, remain in the North, where they may possibly be of more service than they were here to their enterprising and self-sufficient owners.

A destructive fire took place in the city on the evening of the 26th ultimo. It originated, we hear, in the cook-house of a small dwelling and spread with great rapidity—owing to the high wind which prevailed. Over 200 houses were destroyed, but the loss of merchandise was comparatively small. Another fire on the island of Chang-chow broke out about the same time, but fortunately it was extinguished almost immediately, so that scarcely any damage resulted.

Ting Futai has within the last few days greatly added to his popularity by a munificent act of benevolence. His Excellency having heard that much misery existed amongst the poorer class of the inhabitants of this province—owing to the high price of food—has, we understand, contributed 8000 bags of rice towards the public relief of these distressed people. This timely and liberal donation arrived about a week ago, and is now, it is stated, being distributed by the Rice Commission.

Several cargoes of Keelung coal have, we hear, been brought to port by Arsenal gunboats during the past fortnight, and more consignments are, we believe, expected. In fact as we pointed out only a few weeks ago, this particular branch of the local carrying trade appears to have developed with a great degree of regularity on the vessels comprising the Mamoi Arsenal Squadron. On one point, however, we may rest assured—that the vessels in question are the most costly coal barges afloat.

Something altogether unusual must be on the eye of execution in Formosa. The balance of plant forming part of that short-lived undertaking, the Woonung Railway, has we understand been shipped from the Mamoi Arsenal to Takao; but whether it is destined to decorate the muddy shore of that uninteresting fishing village, or to fulfil a more useful purpose in terra firma, are points in regard to which a considerable uncertainty must exist. A railway between Takao and Taiwan has been spoken of for some time past; perhaps it is about to become an accomplished fact.

From a Chinese source we learn that the death list amongst the native troops in Formosa has of late been unusually heavy. The soldiers are said to be dying by hundreds. One regiment, which left Pagoda Anchorage for Takao a short time ago, in full strength, has suffered so severely from fever and other malarious diseases that it is now reduced to a mere skeleton of its former roll. It is evident from this that greater precautions are needed to ensure a healthy condition of the Formosan troops, and the native authorities of that island would therefore, we think, be acting wisely if they paid a little more attention to the sanitary condition of their camps.

A Mahomedan insurrection in Shanai and Honan is rumoured in the North; but nothing authentic is known in regard to the rising.

Following the laudable example lately set by a young Missionary lady on her passage from Hongkong to Shanghai, a Cantonese passenger on the last downward trip of the S. S. Gunga was, we hear, observed to be employing his time in a similar way, and with even greater success,—the subscriptions he collected amounting to about seventy dollars. The book in which subscribers entered their names was adorned with twelve pictures descriptive of the sufferings caused by the famine. Opposite to each picture explanations were given in Chinese, and above the Chinese characters were the following summaries in English:—

- 1.—"No one can be borrowed with money, therefore sold their field and take down their house."
- 2.—"Bark of trees and roots of grasses are stripped (? stripped) and dug to provide their hungry."
- 3.—"Everywhere are refugees, they seek their food and live in open places."
- 4.—"Sold their children are greatly afflicted separating."
- 5.—"Cannot be suffered (? suffered) with hungry and cold, are giving enures (? enures) by hanging and throwing themselves into river."
- 6.—"Dead bodies of starved people lying in the road, hungry people are going to cut it for food."
- 7.—"Bare a child in hunger and cold, mother and infant are dead in such condition."
- 8.—"Skeletons cast in roads and field and hungry ghosts are crying at night."
- 9.—"Filial man and virtuous woman bear their hungry to serve their elders."
- 10.—"Auspicious snow falling in Southern provinces people of such places are delighted with each other."
- 11.—"Memorializing by higher authorities for relief distribution but sorry the place is wide and people is during (? during) cursing."
- 12.—"Those who give subscription God will bless them."

SHANGHAI.

In another column we advertised an address from the Native Tea Guild to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce on the subject of the one-pound allowance from the weight of each package of tea. The Guild say it will be necessary that the subject be discussed between the native merchants and Hong; and in the next breath they say it is impossible to arrive at any decision "for the present," because the native merchants have not arrived at Shanghai. The "Hong" will be able to form their own opinion of this, especially when they consider the concluding paragraph of the advertisement, which says, "that although the prices of merchandise are subject to be raised or lowered, a law has never existed for adding or taking off weights," and that the "settlement of all transactions has invariably been based on the weight as given by the scale." That an adverse decision will be given to the Chamber of Commerce proposal is certain, because, apparently forgetting the previously-stated "compulsion to await the arrival of the new tea and the assembly of merchants in Shanghai before a reply can be given," the Guild distinctly say that the request now made for the allowance of one pound per package, "appears to be unreasonable, and that they see no reason for departing from established custom. It will be well, perhaps, after this, to await the reply that will be given to the Chamber's proposition after the assembly of the merchants in Shanghai. In the meantime, verbum eap."

PROCLAMATION BY THE TAOTAI AT NEOWHANG PROHIBITING THE CULTIVATION OF THE POPPY.

Ching, Intendant of the Circuit of the Prefecture of Feng-tien, and Chin-yue, holding by special appointment of H. M. the nominal rank of Financial Commissioner and enjoying by virtue of his office the civil rank of Judicial Commissioner in command of the coast defence establishment, raised by brevet three grades and honourably recorded three times, issues the following prohibitive proclamation:—

The province of Feng-tien, it is found, has heretofore been a grain producing district; but inasmuch as the cultivation of poppy which has now become so general amongst the inhabitants, is seriously affecting not only the food supply of the people, but is proving detrimental to the revenue of the state, a representation on the subject has been received from the manager of the Leikin office stating that owing to the excessive production of native grown opium for foreign drug has become a drag on the market, the result being a great loss to the revenue of the country, and a serious impediment to the progress of commercial transactions.

Of late years however the people in their simplicity and the desire to grasp after inordinate gains, have engaged more and more in the cultivation of the poppy, while it is hardly necessary to say that the cultivation of rice and cereals has proportionately decreased. A further consideration remains to be noticed,—the revenue derived from the duty on foreign opium is specially applied to the maintenance of the troops in the provinces of Feng-tien and Chihli, and in this way the sources of military expenditure are seriously interfered with by the growth of native opium. There is therefore, there is a pressing need for the strict prohibition of its cultivation necessary—viz., the necessity of rendering secure the food supply of the people, of enlarging the revenue of the country, and of paying due regard to the requirements of the military chest. The Taotai is sending instructions to his subordinates, throughout his entire jurisdiction, calling upon them to prohibit with one accord the cultivation of the poppy, and it is at the same time, to issue a proclamation strictly enforcing this prohibition. He accordingly issues this proclamation and earnestly hopes that the soldiers of the Manchou establishments as well as the ordinary population, will make themselves fully acquainted with its contents, and that henceforth owners of land will in every case confine themselves to cultivating rice and cereals. They will not be permitted in their grasping after inordinate gain, to further engage in the cultivation of the poppy—under penalty of incurring severe punishment in case of disobedience. The Taotai is secretly sending competent emissaries to make enquiries in every direction, and should unprincipled people be found to have the audacity to disregard this prohibition so far as to continue cultivating the poppy, it matters not whether they be discovered by the enquiries of the emissaries or whether their guilt be brought to light from another quarter, they will be forthwith arrested and brought to the Taotai's Tamen; where severe punishment will be meted out to them and their lands confiscated. Not the slightest indulgence or mercy will be shown.

Let every one tremble and obey! A special proclamation.

OPINIONS OF THE CONTINENTAL PRESS ON THE EASTERN QUESTION.

(La République Française, Paris, March 26.) It is amazing to be told, with a grave face, that England has violated the law of nations by sending a squadron through the Dardanelles at the time that the Treaty of 1855 has been torn to shreds by Russian bayonets, and that the Chor's soldiers are camped at the very gates of Constantinople. We do not attach too much importance to these sensational articles, written under the inspiration of Russian diplomats; but they are a symptom of a most singular moral and intellectual condition. Victory has proved an intoxicating draught for wise heads, and rhodomontades is common enough among the vain boastful Slavs. That in the face of such dispositions England should insist on the fundamental condition of her participation in the Congress of Berlin has nothing that should surprise us. No doubt we devoutly hope that no occasion for war may arise between Great Powers; but, for all that, we cannot help confessing that if what is said be true, England, while upholding British interests, is taking in hand the cause of the interests of the whole of the rest of Europe.

(Le Constitutionnel, Paris, March 26.) There are at least four articles of the document drawn up at San Stefano which must necessarily be ratified by the Powers, otherwise their execution would become impossible. Even if the theory of Russia were accepted, according to which the treaties of 1855 and 1871 have been nullified by the recent war, still the privilege must be conceded to the signatory Powers a question of right to alter or expunge portions or the whole of those treaties. In fact, under the treaty Russia alone decides the fate and regulates the institutions of Montenegro, Serbia, Roumania, Bulgaria, Bosnia, and Herzegovina. It would be supposed that in the other European provinces the Sultan is admitted to exercise the rights of sovereignty. This, however, is not the case. Article 16 stipulates that in all other parts of Turkey in Europe elective and local communities will prepare new constitutions, to be submitted to the examination of the Sublime Porte, which will consult the Imperial Government of Russia before putting them into execution. In view of such an arrangement as that, can it be said that the Sultan of Constantinople is now anything more than the Lieutenant of the Emperor of Russia?

(La Persévérance, Milan, March 24.) The substantial part of the treaty is that which deals with the new Principality of Bulgaria. Thereby Russia in fact substitutes herself for Turkey, and secures to herself the possession of Constantinople ultimately. Serbia and Montenegro receive those territorial additions which were demanded and to which no one objected; Roumania gains only a nominal advantage as she was already independent in fact, and also loses for a poor compensation that part of Bessarabia which was given to her by the Treaty of 1859.

(Die Presse, Vienna, March 24.) The treaty, as a whole cannot satisfy us, although we admit that a complete modification of the state of things in the Balkan Peninsula is inevitable. The plan of the new organization proposed by the Treaty of San Stefano will have to be remodelled much more deeply than we had expected, if it be wished that we should agree with the neighbouring Powers and bear with calmness the proposed solution of the Eastern Question. The changes desired by Austria will bear upon the part of the treaty that deals with the Adriatic. Public opinion in Austria will never submit to the extension of Russian influence to the Adriatic. We will not allow the horses of the Cossacks to drink the waters of a river which falls a few leagues from our Ostia into a sea which we regard as our own.

(Revue des Débats, Paris, March 27.) All the journals of Europe now discuss the San Stefano Treaty, and so far as we see, the official text has rather aggravated than diminished the bad impression caused by the numerous anticipatory summaries. Although, contrary to the feeling in London, the Vienna Press had a mot d'ordre to receive the treaty with favour, while admitting it to be susceptible of modification, the surprise was such that the pens of even Ministerial writers could not refrain from sharp criticism, and the Freimantel declares that the preliminaries of San Stefano are incompatible with the existence of Austria as a first-class Power. We are therefore far indeed from the optimistic appreciations which the Russian Nord pressed upon our attention.

(Die Post, Semi-official organ, Berlin, March 26.)

If England persists in not attending the Congress the Treaty of Peace would then be deprived of a European sanction: it is hardly correct to see in England's demand respecting conditions preliminary to the Congress only a formal dispute. There exists a great difference between an English demand and what Russia asserts. Russia can after having refused the English demands in respect of every clause of the Treaty, raise the previous question, whether it is of general interest. In that case England would have to make efforts on each occasion to procure a majority of the Congress. But as regards material decisions, the votes of the majority are not to be admitted. England would be able, by her single vote, to prevent the admission of any of the clauses into the law of Europe. Therefore it is intelligible that England should demand that the Treaty should, as a whole, be submitted to the Congress for examination and deliberation. Russia's reply that in communicating the Treaty to the Powers England's demand was satisfied is hardly conceivable. We doubt whether Russia's refusal is comprehensible from the point of view of a thoroughly comprehensive statesmanship. That the assembly of the Congress is wholly in the interest of Russia has been stated by Prince Bismarck in his recent speech on the Eastern complications. If England does not attend the Congress the Treaty of San Stefano is juridically invalid. England would then continue her armaments, and wait for the most favourable moment for her action. If Russia will not suffer it, she must keep herself upon the offensive. If she finds but a single place to attack England (such a place, however, she will not discover), if the Russian army should march against India, who will protect her conquest in Turkey? Or do they imagine that India can be conquered with a few regiments? These would be phantoms not good enough for being used in a polemic between Russian authors. If Russia will retire to the standpoint of boni possidentes, her whole Empire must remain in arms to be armed at every point for an English attack. This existence, armed from head to foot, both England and Russia will have to endure as long as the former refuses to acknowledge the Treaty of San Stefano for years without suffering by it more than a man who cuts his finger; while Russia cannot stand it for three years. Russia's hopes for an alliance with the United States against England will prove to be idle. Russia cannot bring a real anti-British coalition, while England may be supported by Turkey renewing the war against Russia, who would be compelled by circumstances to advance beyond the limits drawn by the San Stefano Treaty. Even Austria will not remain passive. Turkey will find means to make spontaneous sacrifices of her possessions on the Western Balkan Peninsula in favour of Austria and Greece, in order to reconquer Bulgaria. To avoid these eventualities Russia should be wise enough to be moderate.

(L'Opinion, Rome, March 18.) The fact that the paternal solicitude of Russia is extended to the Bulgarians alone naturally excites suspicion, and people find a clear indication of the future projects of Russia in the fact that the necessary expansion is refused to the Greek nation, and that reliance is placed upon the last remnant of the military vitality of Turkey, which is now a friend and an ally, to prevent Candia, Macedonia, and Thessaly from being joined to Greece, or at least from obtaining a share of those advantages which are granted to Bulgaria.

The Kölnische Zeitung (Cologne, March 17) approves of the intervention of England on behalf of the Hellenes as the first step in a positive future policy of Great Britain in the East.

SAN FRANCISCO.

1st April. The disturbances caused by the Workingmen's Party continue to unsettle business in this State, and some of our capitalists have already withdrawn what they could of their investments and retired to other parts, rather than remain and face the unquiet times in store for us. The depression, I might say utter stagnation, of business is beyond anything ever known in this country. In a former letter I stated that the party had elected several civic officers in different parts of the State, and a mayor for the city of Oakland.

An attempt having been made to smuggle a bill through the Legislature now sitting in Sacramento, by which the city was to purchase the Spring Valley Water Works for $15,000,000, immense excitement was created amongst all classes. It was seen at once that a most nefarious job was about to be perpetrated, and that the taxpayers of this city were to be saddled with an enormous debt. An indignation meeting was called to denounce the proposed bill. Mr Kearney took full possession of the proceedings and would only let those address the public whom he thought proper, although he had no right whatever to interfere. Strange to say that the police supported him, in spite of the dissatisfaction evinced at his uncalculated exercise of power; and, stranger still, two rival editors who had before denounced him as a communist and everything that was bad, were seen to mount the stage and shake hands with him. One of them absolutely addressed the crowd and told them that the Kearneyites had nothing to complain of. Thus we see that already the disaffected party can control public meetings and exclude public opinion from expressing itself at such meetings. The indignation of the public is of course great, but Kearney and his followers are masters of the situation. A more serious act may lead to more serious results.

Senator Bones, recently elected by the party, has on several occasions since he entered the Legislature exercised his prerogative to vote as he thought right. Several of his votes have been adverse to the party that elected him. When he was elected he agreed that condign punishment should overtake him if he betrayed his party. This it is said he has done, and now Kearney says publicly, and so do his party, that Bones must be hung if he does not at once resign. He, however, declines to resign, and leads the party at defiance. Public meetings have been held and the same opinions have been openly expressed. This is a free country, and a Senator may be threatened with assassination with impunity, as nothing is done to vindicate the law or to protect our lawgiver Bones.

A bill has been adopted by the Assembly to increase our police force by two hundred and fifty men, making the total force four hundred, a very necessary regulation at a period when neither life nor property may be said to be safe in this city. Among the numerous murders committed since my last letter, may be mentioned the shooting of another policeman by hoodlums. Bank, who was condemned some time since, has obtained a reprieve, and will probably have his sentence commuted to imprisonment.

At Pine Flat, two twin brothers named Thompson, well-to-do farmers, were shot dead by a man who had some old wrong to avenge. The murderer had not been arrested.

A little excitement has occurred in commercial circles, owing to the probability of war being declared between England and Russia. The number of British cruisers in the Pacific, I believe, is sufficient to protect the immense wheat fleet which will shortly leave this port for Liverpool and other parts of the United Kingdom.

A Russian corvette, the Cruyzer, lies here in a very leaky condition, and if not sent to harbour (in case of war) by her Captain, will probably fall into the hands of one of H.M.'s ships. She is the only Russian vessel on the coast at present.

The Legislature in view of the opposition evinced against the Spring Valley Water Bill, refused to pass it, and consequently the danger of having to pay $15,000,000 for works whose value is not much above half that sum; is for the present over. Nevertheless, things of this kind are so queerly managed in this country, and the voice of the "sovereign people" is so little attended to, that it would astonish no one to learn that the rejected bill had been passed under another form. Fortunately, Governor Irwin has put his veto on several schemes of this kind during the present session, thereby saving the people from further taxation, which is already unbearable. We look forward with hope for a change in the condition of things for the better in the anticipated grain crop, which will give for foreign export upwards of 700,000 tons.

Mark Hopkins of the Central Pacific, one of our millionaires, has passed away, leaving the immense palatial structure on "Nob Hill" unfinished, with no one but a wife to inherit it and his immense wealth.

Mr. Blaine has in his place in Washington, denounced the award of $5,000,000 to Canada on the fisheries question, and has pointed out a clause in English law by which that award may be evaded, but with little honor to the nation. He makes out that undue influence was brought to bear by the Court of St. James in the appointment of Mr. Delfosse the Belgian Minister, who was supposed to be favourable to England. But the money will be paid in spite of the attempt to repudiate, and the honour of the nation will be vindicated. It may possibly turn out an excessive claim, but so was the Geneva award, which was paid at once. The appointment of Delfosse as third arbitrator was the result of an agreement between Sir Edward Thornton and Mr. Secretary Fish (after much discussion) to write a note asking the Austrian Ambassador at London to select the third commissioner, and he at once appointed the Belgian Minister.

Senator Blair is one of those unhappy men who cannot reconcile themselves to the inevitable, and he recently gave vent to his feelings by again attacking the legitimacy of the election of President Hayes, although the subject is of no special interest to any one besides himself and perhaps one or two others. The country wants peace and quietness, and the people want down any attempt at disturbance, and will not therefore, whatever party they profess, allow the question of the Presidential election to be discussed without showing signs of impatience.

The scheme to revive a Central American Republic or Confederation has again been revived, and promises to repeat the bloody condition of the past. The Republics of Costa Rica and Guatemala are already arming for war, the former being determined to carry out the scheme at all hazards, while the latter is equally determined to oppose it. Should a resort to arms follow, Nicaragua, Honduras and San Salvador will become involved in the conflict.

The ports of Nicaragua are, we learn, to be blockaded by German ships-of-war, until certain demands made by Germany have been complied with. This interruption to the commerce of the Pacific coast is to be regretted at the present time, although it may be very necessary to the ends of justice.

The Fenian leader, O'Donovan Rossa, has turned up—this time in Toronto, whither he had gone to deliver one of his inflammatory lectures. On entering the city he became nervous, and in order to avoid the crowd assembled at the station he leaped from the fast-moving train, fell and rolled in the mud, narrowly escaping being run over by the cars. A terrible fight took place between his supporters and those who opposed them, and several of the police and others were seriously wounded. O'Donovan Rossa bolted in fear of his life, and escaped from a city where his doctrines were not sufficiently appreciated.

We have just received the news of an atrocious murder committed in West Virginia by a man named John Wallace, who killed Mrs George Wallace and child and Miss Church, whom it is thought he had previously outraged, in conjunction with another man who has not yet been arrested.—N. O. C. News.
